

ORCHARD RACK
When your crops just won't quit, set up this wooden stand—with sliding drawers—to handle the overflow (from Gardener's Supply, from $80; gardeners.com).

DRYING RACK
Before you make tea or sachets out of your lemon verbena or lavender, you'll need to dry the herbs, of course. Enter this useful foldaway rack (from High Country Gardens, $20; highcountrygardens.com).

METAL BASKET
The galvanized mesh wire lets you hose off your produce right in the basket before carrying it, soil-free, inside (from Peaceful Valley, $40; groworganic.com).

Harvest helpers

With all your hard work starting to pay off, these should come in handy

BY JOHANNA SILVER
PHOTOGRAPHS BY JEFFERY CROSS

PESTO JARS
Nothing says summer like fresh pesto. Freeze some for winter in one of these airtight, BPA-free baby-food containers (from Pottery Barn Kids, $30 for set of 4; potterybarnkids.com).

VEGETABLE BASKETS
Potatoes like to breathe; let them do so in these willow baskets in a nice cool spot (from Gardener's Supply, $50 for set of 2; gardeners.com).

BERRY CARTONS
Reusable ceramic replicas of traditional farmers'-market baskets provide good air flow to keep your harvest fresh (from aHa Modern Living, from $13; ahamodernliving.com).

